THE TILLMAN PITCHFORK AGAIN.

It Is Placed in Evidence With Respect to the Proposed Sugar Inquiry-Republican Support of Speaker Reed.

Finance Committee was sustained. The the policy of refraining from making

Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, gave the Senate another hour of exciting controversy over the proposed sugar in-lution reciting that the skeletons of American soldiers killed at Buena Vista in 1847 were now exhumed, and asking the State Department to Investigate the subject and report the facts to Congress. A letter was read in this connection from Consul-General Crittenden, saying the of American soldiers were bleaching in the sun. The resolution was then agreed another phase of the sugar investigation, closing with a motion to discharge the Committee on Contingent Expenses from Committee on Contingent Expenses from further consideration of the resolution recently offered by him to investigate the alleged speculation in sugar stocks. The motion contemplated an immediate vote by the Senate on the sugar investigation resolution. Mr. Tillman spoke in his usual vehement style, which attracted much attention, and drew crowds to the galleries. He began by quoting from a Haverhill (N. H.) newspaper, referring to the recent speech of Mr. Tillman, and adding a query as to whether the proposed sugar inquiry would be supplemented by an inquiry into the charges of ex-Senator Butler in connection with Mr. Tillman's administration to the Carolina dispensary law. charges of ex-Senator Butler in confidention with Mr. Tillman's administration of the South Carolina dispensary law. The charges against him were stale, Mr. Tillman said. He had met them before Tillman said. He had met them before, and he read an open letter written to the people of South Carolina, characterizing the charges as slander. This was an attempt to divert attention from the sugar scandal, the Senator declared, but the attempt would, fall.

old regime, and it had won him many enemies. All the crimes in the decalogue enemies. All the crimes in the decalogue had been charged against him. He had appealed to his people, and they had sustained him, sending him to the Senate, after a heated canvass, in which Mr. Butler had sought to 'fly-blow' his (Tillman's) character. Now the same old eggs were brought forward. If any man desired to look into his character, then, said Mr. Tillman, he courted the fullest inquiry, and any other senator against whom there was the breath of scandal, should have the charges probed to the bottom and the scandal dispelled.

CHARGES AGAINST SMITH.

He had made no charges against the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. Smith), he declared, but had merely submitted the published charges now before the public, and since the committee had made no report on the resolution, Mr. Tillman said he would now move to discharge the committee from further consideration of the resolution. "So that," he added, with rising inflection, "senators can now put the resolution. "So that." he added, with rising inflection, "senators can now put themselves on record as to whether they want these charges investigated."

Mr. Tillman dropped into his chair, but was quickly on his feet again. He had, he said, approached the chairman (Mr. Jones, of Nevada,) of the Committee on Contingent Expenses, and had been told by him that he was ready to report the resolution, but was awaiting the action of the other two members of the committee (Messrs, Jonés of Arkansas and Galinger of New Hampshire).

Mr. Gallinger than secured recognition for a statement of the attitude of the committee, he being the senior member in the absence of the chairman, Mr. Jones, of Nevada, "Every man in public life feels the sting of false charges," said he, "and must the Senate pause every time such accusations are brought, to spend the time and money of the United States in pursuing these charges? If this is to be the case, then there would never be a tariff bill or any other bill."

Mr. Vest suggested that there was a precedent for ignoring charges against the personal character of a senator. He referred to the attitude of Senator Thurman, when an investigation was proposed against one of his-ansociates. He had held that the courts were open for private redress, and that it was not for the Senate to undertake to right a private wrong. There had been no dissenting voice from this position, Mr. Vest asserted, and it was not for the Senate to put aside its public business to attend to the brivate character of senators.

Mr. Tillman was agas no his feet. The newspapers were trying to make a fire in front. His resolution simply sought to determine whether the Finance Committee was the creature of the Sugar Trust—or whether they were here performing their duties as honorable men."

Mr. Gallinger, proceeding, said the people of each senator's State must pass > so, you stand convicted before the American people."

> "The time has not arrived," Mr. Gallinger proceeded caimly, "when the American press was to be muzzled in the manner suggested by the Senator from South Carolina. The era of the Spanish inquisition had gone by, and the men of the press, zealous in their duties, were not to be dealt with by such methods."
> Mr. Gallinger closed with an earnest protest against railroading the resolution out of the committee in defiance of precedent and the usual courtesy prevailing.
> "I desire to call your attention." again interjected Mr. Tillman, "to the fact that your side is railroading through a turiff bill, and as soon as it is passed, you propose to adjourn, so that. If there is to be any sugar investigation, it is time to begin it at once."
> Mr. Gallinger was led into further reply. He referred to the futility of investigations, and the humiliations to which senators were subjected in being brought before the former sugar investigation. He again protested against action which would degrade the committee having charge of the resolution.
> QUESTION OF VERACITY.
> At this stage an exciting colloquy occurred, which appeared to involve a question of veracity. Mr. Tillman interrupted to state that he had it from the chairman of the committee (Mr. Jones, of Nevada) that he was ready at any time to report the resolution back. Mr. Gallinger said such an assertion "could not be correct, as the committee had met on the day of the alleged statement by the chairman, and had not reached a determination."
> "The chairman told me he was ready to report." insisted Mr. Tillman. Here Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, the other member of the committee, arose, and in posi-"The time has not arrived," Mr. Gal-tive tones, declared: "The chairman could made such a statement, as he did make it," again asserted

"But he did make it," again asserted Mr. Tilman.
"Then let him make it himseif," demanded Mr. Jones.

The senators were facing each other, and the exchange was direct and personal. Mr. Tillman said he had seen that the Republican senators "had caucussed at a dinner" and had decided not to support this investigation. Was this another lie? "The senators were also said to be opposed to the investigation, but," he added, turning to his associates, "If there is rascality we ought to know it. It lies with you, by your votes, to be relieved of the charges before the American people."

can people."

Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, of the committee, gave assurance that the resolution would be reported in due time. "But, aside from this," proceeded Mr. Jones, "I cannot shut my eyes to facts connected with this subject. I believe the Senate of the United States is an honorable body. I believe senators are gentlemenas a rule." There was a hum of suppressed laughter at this qualification.

Here Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, demanded a vote on the motion, and Mr. Gallinger moved to lay the motion on the table.

the table.

Mr. Tillman again rose. In view of the fact that two members of the committee had given assurances that the resolution would be reported, he would, he said, withdraw the motion, so that senators could vote on the main question when presented without complications as to the committee procedure.

This closed the incident, and the tariff bill was taken up. There was a contest over the paragraph relating to cut nails. Mr. Vest said the American producer had absolute control of the market and exported large quantities of nails. There was no competition from abroad, and hence no need of heavy rates.

Mr. Allison explained that the rate was only a little above that provided by Mr. Vest and his associates in the act of 189. Mr. Vest moved to reduce the rate on cut nails from six-tenths of a cent per pound to 20 per cent, ad valorem. The amendment was disagreed to—yeas, 26; nais, 26—Mr. McEnery (Democrat) voting with the Republicans in the negative.

On paragraph 157, horseshoe nails, hobmalls, etc., Mr. Turpie, of Indiana, moved a reduction from 21-4 cents per pound to 25 per cent, ad valorem. Mr. Turpie said horses were becoming so cheap that horseshoe nails would soon become more costly than the horses. The amendment was disagreed to—22 to 32.

The House proceedings were enlivened by a single incident, the attempt of Mr. Terry (Democrat), of Arkansas, to secure consideration, as a privileged matter, of a resolution for the immediate appoint-ment of the Committee on Foreign Afment of the Committee on Foreign Alfairs, in order, as the preliminary whereas recited, to permit action on the Senate

During the debate on the Frye bill Mr. Pavne (Republican), of New York, who had charge of the measure, stated that the Republicans, to a man, stood by the Speaker. "We have sat by, day after day," said he," and seen him insulted because we know insults from that side of the House could not hurt him. We saw him attacked, insulted, and even abused with foul names, but the abuse recoiled upon its authors, and the country sustained the Speaker. Evidently there are still those over there (pointing to the Democratic side) who believe they can gain some notoriety or fame by hurling insults at the gentleman whose place in the chair stops him from defending himself." (Republican applause.)

Mr. Payne's remarks aroused the Democrats, and several of them desired to reply. When, therefore, Mr. Payne cut them off by demanding the previous question, they began to fillibuster.

Mr. Fleming (Democrat), of Georgia, made the point of no quorum, but on a roil-call the Speaker succeeded in counting just the requisite number. The bill was then passed.

A letter was read from the F Company Association in reply to a resolution of the Council, in which the officers of that organization regretfully stated that the finances of the association were not such as to enable them to erect the proposed monument on the triangular lot at Broad and Adams streets and Brook avenua. The association relinquished all claims to the property, and returned sincere thanks to the city for its generosity in donating the site. Colonel Cutshaw was directed to write to the association and ask how soon the association would probably be able to build the monument.

Children, under no pretence, will be admitted. While deploring the necessity laid upon us to exclude friends from the interesting service, it is right and best and we have only to accept the inevita-ble. We have this service only by the kindness and courtesy of Major Lynn, Prison Superintendent, and we feel that we must ensure the good order the en-vironment demands. WASHINGTON, June 3 .- The Senate gain made good progress on the tariff bill to-day, covering about ten pages of the metal schedule, and almost completing it. The formal contest against the measure was maintained, but all amendments tending to change the bill as reported were voted down, and the debate was mainly of a technical character, the Republican senators continuing and paid agents of the Sugar Trust—or whether they were here performing their duties as honorable men."

Mr. Gallinger, proceeding, said the people of each senator's State must pass upon his character. The people of South Carolina had passed on the character of the Senator from South Carolina, and that was sufficient vindication, without an appeal to the Senate.

"Can Senator Aldrich and the committee deny a hearing," queried Mr. Tallman," when the paper making the charge offered to appear and prove the charge?"

Mr. Gallinger said this investigation of charges might go on indefinitely. Suppose another paper made another charge, Must the Senate start an investigation of that charge? And, then, suppose other charges were made. Must further investigations be started? Was that the kind of business the Senate must embark upon instead of attending to pressing legislation?"

THE SLANDER OF INK. Mr. Tillman was still standing at his desk, and hurled back the answer: "If these charges are false, then it is time to stop the lies spread before the public, this shander of link, and to punish the men guilty of the falsehood; and until you do so, you stand convicted before the American people."

TO BUILD AN ELKS' REST.

The Richmond Lodge of Elks, at their meeting last Wednesday, appointed two Rest"—one for the living, and another for dead.

Richmond Lodge is on a tidal wave of success, and its finances have never been on such a satisfactory basis as at present. There is a considerable surplus in the treasury, and with its rapidly-increasing membership, the lodge has been at a decided disadvantage in its present quarters.

It is proposed, therefore, that the Elks shall have a building of their own, and the committee appointed last Wednesday will formulate plans to be submitted to the lodge at the next monthly meeting. The other committee will negotiate for a lot in one of the cemeteries, to be designated "Elks' Rest," and for an appropriate and handsome monument to be erected over it. These arrangements will also be submitted to the lodge at the next meeting, and will be acted upon.
